FROST WORK .- One or two frosts have occur red, and the foliage and flowers bear marks of the approaching Fall. The green livery with which the eath so daintily decked herself out in the Spring, is being rapidly changed for the sombre hues and varegated garb of Autumn. The ripened corn stands in shocks over the fields or is gathered into the barn, and the farmer realizes the fruits of his toil. "The fall of the leaf," however, is as suggestive of sober thought as of poet's dream. While it brings renewed life to trade, and renewed vigor to many who are prostrated in health and energy by the lassitude and enervation produced by the heat, it brings dismay and dread to the poor. The Winter which with encroaching steps is close upon us, has little pity for the poor, whom the genial heat of Summer allowed to dispense with fires, and whose tat tered garments are all insufficient to keep out the wind. The mendicant, who a few months rested contentedly on the green-sward, or seeking the shade of the forest, slept in comfort. has, as he wanders homeless and houseless, the faculty of suffering as keenly developed as the fashionable lady who muffles in her costly furs; and the beggar-child who so enjoyed the sunshine of May, is as susceptible to the north wind's fury, as she stands shivering in her tattered garments, as is the little fellow who with boots and mittens and flannel toils at his sled, and in the evening basks by the well filled glowing grate. The poor widow whose husband lies sleeping on some one of the many battle fields of the Old Dominion, as her dependent little ones hang around her, wonders how they are to be clothed and ted. It was hard work in the summer, when provisions, always high to her, could be offset with the abundance of fruits and vegetables with which the market was stocked; now in the approaching winter they will need food, comfortable clothing, shoes, everything, and |

"Here's enough for sad thinking." And the story is not near told of the troubles that winter will bring to the needy and unfortunate. Let every reader of these lines bethink himself, and as Providence has blest him, so let him bless some one or more less favored in far, for unfortunately "the poor we have always with us;" and the few kind acts, costing making some desolate home happy, some hearth-stone bright and blessed, some soul made glad. Do not stop to find the deserving, you are not deserving yourself; none are; but wherever suffering is, mitigate it, and your reward will come here and hereafter.

ALEXANDRIA. - It is gratifying to know that this good city, truly Virginian, so steadfast in principle, so heroic in conduct during the war, is beginning to regain her trade and commerce. Slowly but surely, she is rising into importance again as a market for grain, which comes to her from all parts of the State and even from Richmond itself. Within a few weeks, the coal trade, restricted for years to Georgetown, will return to Alexandria, and itself ensure the trade with Liverpool and the West Indies will soon be resumed by Messrs. Hooe and Wedderburn, the worthy successors of Fowle and Co. Manufactures are looking up. During our re-cent sojourn in the city, we visited the spoke factory of Mr. Rosenthal, the furniture manufactory of Messrs. Green and Brother, the sash and blind factory of Messrs. Nalls and Co., and other establishments which have been recently started. The Messrs. Green exhibited to us a set of oiled walnut furniture, made by one of their workmen (a young Confederate soldier) which for taste in design, solidity and excellence in workmanship could hardly be surpassed. We were much pleased with this evidence of skill in a department which has been claimed by the North as exclusively its own. and-to onr shame be it said—the claim has too of en been allowed. Messrs. Nalls and Co, have some $13,000 invested in machinery alone The demand for their work is so great that they are on the eve of enlarging their already exten sive establishment by the introduction of more machines and the construction of buildings am ple enough to contain them. We regretted to lear some of the merchants speek with deep eeling about the treatment they have receive from men in the country who pass them by and expend all their money in cities further North, This seems a poor requital of the sacrifices made by the Alexandrians, who rather than take the oath, retired from business and impoverished themselves. But it should be remembered that the spirit of patriotism is one of self denial, while the spirit of trade is essentially a self seeking spirit. In due time, the Alexandrians will receive their reward; the bread east upon the waters will surely return to them. A better day is at hand.

DISEASED MEAT. - Official reports state that nearly 600 tons of meat have been condemned during the past six years in the London market, by the inspectors appointed for that purpose. It is not supposed that any one would intentionally expose diseased, meat for sale in our markets, but that inexperienced persons may possess the means of judging, we give a few rules condensed from a report on the subject, whereby a judgment may be formed :-"Good meat is neither of a pale pinkish color supported. Radical as he is, Mr. McKenzie is nor of a dark purple tint. The former indicates disease, the latter natural death or acute fever. Good meat is marked by small veins of fat, which is hard and suety, and never wet; while that of diseased meat is soft and watery, often like jelly or sodden parchment. Healthy searcely moistens the fingers, while diseased of 7th street and Maryland avenue, Washingmeat is soft and wet, often so much so that serum runs from it. Good meat has little odor and that not disagreeable, while diseased meat styles of Sleeve Buttons, Studs, Chains, Bracesmells faint and cadaverous, and often emits the odor of medicine, especially when fresh this week at Prigg's One Dollar Jewe'ry Store, ent, or minced, or treated with hot water. No. 438, Pa. ave., near 41 st., Washington, D.C. Good meat shrinks in cooking, while bad shrivels or boils to pieces." Dr. Livingston says that the flesh of slaughtered cattle while suffering with pleuro-pneumonia produces malignant carbuncle in those who cat it. He cites statistics to prove that after the importation of pluro-pneumonia in cattle from Holland, the deaths from carbuncle increased more than six-fold, and the mortality from kindred diseases increased thirty fold. The ill effects of this kind of meat cannot be destroyed by cook-

TOURNAMENT AND BALL.—The tournament and ball of the Fairfax Socials and Pioneer Base Ball Club, which takes place at Carlin's above all they need that which she seems least | Springs, on Wednesday next, 16th inst., promises to be one of the most pleasant affairs of the kind ever gotten up in this vicinity. Already a large number of gentlemen have entered their names as contestants for the honor of crowning the Queen of Love and Beauty, and should the weather prove favorable, a large crowd is expected to be present to witness the circumstances. One need not search long or tournay and coronation. The prizes, consisting of beautiful and costly wreaths, are now on exhibition at W. W. Adam's jewelry store, us little besides the effort, will go far towards King street. After the riding a match game of base ball will be played between the Jeffersons, of Washington, and the Pioneers, the champion club of this city, after which a grand patterns of Fall and Winter Cassimeres; togrand fancy ball will take place.

REDUCTION OF TELEGRAPH RATES.—The agent of the Western Union Telegraph Company, in this city, Mr. R. R. McCaine, has notified Mr. Worthington the President of the Corn Exchange, that, at the solicitation of the business men'the rates for telegraghing to Baltimore, New York and other Northern cities have been reduced. The tariff to Baltimore, which has heretofore been 55 cts. for ten words or less, and 5 cts. for each additional word, has been reduced to 40 cts. for ten words, and 4 cts, for each additional word. To New York growth and prosperity of the city. Direct the tariff has been reduced from $1 for ten words, and S ets. for each additional word, to 75 ets. for ten words, and 6 ets. for each addi tional word.

> O. & A. R. R.-A defence of this road against the charges made by the National Intelligencer appears in a late number of the Alandria Gazette. The defence is well written, temperate and, apparently, complete. It is admitted, however, that there is a deficiency in motive power and transportation. This will be remedied as the means of the company increase. It is satisfactory to know that the Baltimore and Ohio road does not own enough of the stock to control the road-as many persons in Mexandria believe. The road is well managed; but one thing needs attention,-Between Gordonsville and Culpeper C. H., a listance of 27 miles, there is no telegraph office In case of an accident, additional trouble would be apt to ensue for want of such an office. - Orange Expositor.

CHURCH ORGANIZATION. -- The revival noticed as in progress at the Village Chapel, still continues with unabated, or rather with inereased interest, and a considerable number of conversions are reported from time to time. As the fruits of this revival, a church organization has been effected under the pastoral charge of Rev. J. C. Hummer, composed of the new converts and some of the members of the M. E. Church, South, on Washington street, who have been in part instrumental in The Mansion House was our home during promoting the revival interest. The nucleus our brief sojourn. ACCIDENT. Mr. Jonathan Hicks, of this place, while walking at the foot of Ninth street, in Washington, on Thursday evening, fell from the high embankment at that point, and was severely injured from the bruises received. He was taken up shortly after by some persons residing in the vicinity, who sent him to his home.

PERSONAL.-Rev. W. W. Duncan, at one time the popular and winning Pastor of the M. E. Church, South, in this city, was here on POTOMAC GARDEN, Wednesday last. J. M. Gray & Miller, of the firm of Gray Com. vs. Mary Odell-on an indictment for Miller & Co., and A. McCleish, are in business in Baltimore. Alexandria n erchants seem to flourish and prosper wherever they settle.

> BRANCH TO WASHINGTON .- It is said that at the meeting proposed in Leesburg, in favor of a branch road from the Alex, L & H. R. R., to Georgetown and Washington, to be held on the 23d inst., the Common Council of Georgetown will be represented, and the Railroad is to appoint delegates-and that free passes over the road will be tendered to them. It is, also, said that "every dollar necessary to the construction of the proposed branch, commencing five or six miles the other side of Alexandria, can be raised in Washington, and Georgetown.
